Minnesota Classification Index

How to Use the Classification

The Minnesota Classification Index was developed by the Minnesota Workers' Compensation Insurers Association, Inc. as a cross reference aid to users of the Minnesota Basic Manual for Workers' Compensation and Employer's Liability Insurance. The Index is designed to assist users in locating appropriate manual provisions and classification with greater ease by providing a more extensive listing of common work descriptions and relating those descriptions back to particular work related classifications.

The user of the Index is reminded that the proper classification of jobs is governed by the applicable provisions of Minnesota law and, as permitted by those laws, the filings of individual insurers or state approved manuals, such as the Minnesota Basic Manual. The Index should not be viewed as a substitute for those sources, but rather as an aid to you in using the Minnesota Basic Manual. In addition to locating possible work related classifications with the Index, you should always carefully determine the detail of the job, product or process under consideration, review the insurer's own state approved classifications and relevant provisions of the Minnesota Basic Manual, if they apply. The classifications used in Minnesota may vary from time to time, the classification index is updated periodically to reflect those changes. The user should check the "Last Updated" date in Class Search Screen on the website to denote the most recent update.

Column Headings used in the Index:

Description - This column contains in alphabetical order, a brief listing of various products, processes, types of businesses or other operations conducted by employers. These are in boldface type. Many listings have a number of sub- listings (not in bold type and preceded by a hyphen) to further aid the user in finding the appropriate classification code.

Manufacture or Process - The classifications listed under this column heading generally pertain to jobs related to the manufacturing or processing of a product.

Dealer - The classification codes listed under this column heading usually pertain to the selling of completed goods. This column is further divided between Wholesale and Retail, as sales of goods generally falls into either of these categories. Note: Some classes treat wholesale and retail sales the same within the classification, so only a single class code is shown.

Where the Dealer entries are left blank, it is generally because there is no exposure contemplated under the dealer category for the product or process described. Generally, this applies to industries that provide services, such as "Analytical Chemists", or when the processing of a product is involved, such as "Electroplating".

Repair - This column is designed to include repair activities for the products listed. Again, the column is further divided to reflect the fact that repairs can occur at the employer's Shop, or at another site- Outside. Quite frequently, repair operations are included as part of the basic classification description. If no entry is displayed, consideration should be given to the employer's basic business, and the Manual wording of any other classification that may be applicable.

Install Of - This column shows the classification codes generally applicable for the installation of, or erection of, the products listed. Occasionally, where more than one code must be considered, we have shown additional installation codes.

Other - This column indicates the miscellaneous classification code entries not covered elsewhere. An example would be Code 9015, "Building or Property Management- All other employees". The maintenance of a building as a separate business is not properly described by the preceding headings, and consequently appears in the column under the Other heading. When two or more codes are shown, the user should refer to all classification phraseologies to determine the appropriate code. For example: Codes 9082, 9083, 9084 all apply to "Restaurants".

Legend of Symbols and Abbreviations

F - A “F” following a code denotes a federal code subject to the United States Longshore and Harbor Workers Compensation Act.

S - A “S” following a code denotes a Minnesota State Special Code.

Gov. Code - Denotes a Governing Classification Code as defined in the Manual.

N.O.C. - Not Otherwise Classified

Recond. - Reconditioning

U.S. Act - United States Longshore and Harbor Workers Compensation Act.

We hope you will find the Classification Index useful. If you have comments on how it can be improved, or questions pertaining to its use, please contact the Underwriting Department:
